

Tribal Resources

This bulletin consolidates equity focused tribal resources into one section for your reference. Many of these resources spanned across the 12 competencies from the Baseline Organization Assessment for Equity Infrastructure and did not fit in any particular section. Therefore, the CDPH Equity Technical Assistance Team assembled the sources into their own bulletin for ease of access.

Additionally, the team wanted to highlight Tribal resources because despite California having the largest AI/AN population in the US, data is limited and resources are not widely available. These resources are not exhaustive but can help explore approaches to explore meaningful communication, trust-building, and government-to-government cooperation with California tribes.

TITLE	DESCRIPTION
CA Governor's Office of Tribal Affairs: Cultural Humility	Template. This slide deck originates from a presentation on cultural humility from the Office of the Tribal Advisor. It is intended for local and state professionals working with Native American populations in CA. The presentation includes an overview on tribal sovereignty, cultural identity, important terminology and so much more.
Working with Tribal Nations	Training. This training provides guidance on effective engagement with tribal populations. It includes a historical overview on colonialism and its impact on tribal health. It also lists best practices for working with tribal populations.
Native Data	Guide. This resource provides information to people and organizations seeking to obtain and share tribal health data. It includes self-reflective questions for Native-serving organizations seeking to respectfully collaborate with tribal populations. It discusses the importance of data sharing partnerships, offers tips for obtaining tribal health data and provides a data sharing agreement template.

(continued)

TITLE	DESCRIPTION
Urban Indian Health Institute: Best Practices for AIAN Data Collection (and Use)	Guide. This guide describes best practices for collecting data on American Indian and Alaska Native populations. Recommendations include, but are not limited to, using weighted sampling, reporting limitations of data collection, and aggregating data on tribal populations.
Health Care Considerations for Two Spirit and LGBTQIA Indigenous Communities	Guide. This guide is intended for health centers serving LGBTQIA+ Native people. It includes important terms and definitions, key concepts, and strategies on how to improve health and health equity for AI/AN populations.
Beyond Land Acknowledgement: A Guide	Guide. This online guide from the Native Governance Center provides tips for creating an indigenous land acknowledgment statement. It encourages readers to start with self-reflection, build authentic relationships with Indigenous people and recognizes the land acknowledgment alone is "not enough".

(continued)

TITLE	DESCRIPTION
Digital Atlas of California Native Americans	Guide. This interactive atlas displays the various tribes and tribal lands throughout the state of California. It contains historical information on tribal trade relations, treaty lands, missions, reservations, and other information related to the ancestry of Native Americans.
What Good is a Land Acknowledgement?	Webinar. This webinar featuring Dr. Cutcha Risling Baldy from Humboldt State University discusses what a land acknowledgement is good for and provides an overview of Humboldt County tribal history.

Acknowledgements & Disclaimers

This Equity Toolkit Addendum is for you. It is a living document, bringing you Tribal Resources on equity infrastructure. If you have any suggestions on what you would like to see (or links don't work), please let us know via the Equity Portal.

Additionally, if you would like to be connected with our Tribal Specialist, please submit an inquiry through the Equity Portal and choose "American Indian/Alaskan Native & Tribal Populations" for the topic.

These links are being provided for informational purposes only and do not constitute an approval by the CDPH of any of the products, services or opinions of the corporation or organization or individual. CDPH bears no responsibility for the accuracy, legality, or content of the external site or for that of subsequent links. Contact the external site for answers to questions regarding its content.